To Lawrenceville's Decennial Year this Volume is respectfully Dedicated.

OLLAPODRIDA is my name,
I'm known alike to art and fame.
Forth from this world of student life,
Into a world, with action rife
Yearly I'm sent, with much aplomb;
(Excuse this eulogistic bomb)
'Tis all on account of Ninety-three;
For I am sure you will all agree,
That for quiet elegance of diction,
In point of fact and stretch of fiction,
Both mentally and artistically
I will bear examination—
In that respect I may differ you see,
From some of the Class of Ninety-three.
Of course, my dress is quite a la mode,
According to fashion's latest code;
"True blue" and gold enliven my crest,
And I am doing my "level best"
To prove the noble pedigree
Of the noble Class of Ninety-three,
Which, with characteristic modesty,
Would sink out of sight, were it not for me.
To prevent such a dire catastrophy,
As well as a loss to posterity,
A living witness I'm sure to be
For the dear old Class of Ninety-three.

Preface.

REALIZING the difficulty of in any way excelling the '91 Ollapod, the decennial class presents its parting words to the Alumni and undergraduates of Lawrenceville. If in the least, justice has been done to the class and to the school, the '93 board will feel well satisfied. Our assurance that the Lawrenceville yearbook will continue to improve in the future as it has in the past, is based upon the hope that coming boards will receive as many kindnesses as we have, from their classes, their schoolmates, and their masters.

We take this opportunity of especially thanking Messrs. Johnston, '94; Borie, '94; and Shieffelin, '95; for their drawings, which have added not a little to our volume; and finally, we respectfully though firmly call the school's attention to the fact that, however poor or good the Ollapod may be, only by the purchase of one can just reproach or praise be given to

History of '93.

THER classes have usually been either foreshadowed or actually accompanied by some wonderful event, either a freak of nature, some great good or misfortune, or some other peculiar circumstance that has "marked it as its own," and whose name has become inseparable from that of the class. That is, their histories have begun with something that has stood out from and above the class itself.

'93

But not so with '93! Calmly and quietly did she begin; insignificant and unthought of were her baby days; but each day, each month like the builder's brick or stone, lent its help to raise her structure. For our greatest success as well as for the epithet that shall be attached to us, we look not only to our class alone, but to our latter days rather than our beginning. We do not know what that epithet will be, but let us be known by what we ourselves have done, not by what we couldn't prevent being done for us.

To Lawrence then we came September 12th, 1889, the year that crowned the school history of the class that has done so much to swell the reputation of Lawrenceville at the colleges. We need not describe our feelings at setting foot upon the ground here. Everyone who has been a school boy knows them. The sudden newness and our own curiosity were enough to make us forgetful at first of what we'd left behind us; but a few days sufficed to wear away the glamour, and then ——, well, I think we can, with enough correctness, say that every boy, during the first few weeks, passes through a state of mental uneasiness which only devotion to work or possibly some acute means of enjoyment can allay.

Our First Form year passed away like a dream with no happening important enough to make it memorable; but judging from the latter end rather than from the beginning, we must have been, like Paul in the wilderness, building a solid foundation for what was to come. When I say we I don't mean that all who began with '93 are still numbered among us and protected by its strong arm—far from it—for what with the keen-edged reaper's blade called "reassignment" which plays its yearly havoc in every Form; what with the lightning strokes that have visited us as well as all others during the thunder storms of "Jove," and with the thievish pranks of that butterfly, the summer girl; and last but saddest of all the vacancies made by the cold, gray hand of death, of the seventy odd that began with '93, only a scanty dozen remain to tell the tale, but around that twelve is clustered a band, if not of as long standing, at least as loyal, as those who started us on our course.

The Second Form year was a little more eventful than the first. It was then that we recruited the majority of our celebrities, some of whom came in the natural order of things, while others were donated by '92. How she spared them we cannot tell. They were, and for the matter o' that, they are such jewels. For example: the mighty Smith, "that Jack at all trades," whose word is literal law; a stalwart Democrat who, the next year, when the party of the Fed's were in such sore distress, raised them by his power and was fast leading on to victory, when that awful mandate came and put an end to all further operations. A sad day when he leaves Lawrence for his far-off Pacific home, and long will his memory be green in the hearts of '93. We now began to appear in public without fear of our lives, and even to claim our rights. Not boisterously did we do it—although our numbers would have warranted any amount of forcing and bullying—but in perfect good will and harmony. When we wiped an opposing football team off the face of the earth, as often happened, we were not puffed up with arrogance and pride; we did not strut about for high and low to gaze upon. Happy, of course we were; but we preferred to conceal our joy in preparing for foes yet unconquered. We knew too well that the energy lost in gloating over victory, and the time thrown away in crowing over victims, are too often the causes of defeat which is continually waiting for all "all important" beings. In the spring of this year our representatives materially aided the baseball team in beating the Freshmen by a score of 6 to 3. Materially aided them! Well, I might almost say that '93 did the beating herself, with the aid of a few picked men from the school; for be it known that of the nine players on the team, six were numbered in our class. This was only a starter in the list of what we did in athletics; we don't stop to mention the 100-yards dash, the horizontal bar, the high jump, throwing baseball and numerous other accomplishments, because 'tis time to pass on to the fall of '91 when the duties of the Third Form devolved upon us. Now a Third Former either knows at the beginning or very soon realizes his importance in life as well as the necessity of work; so we began to look forward and plan ahead things unthought of heretofore. In short, a manly feeling—one of strength—came over us; we were no longer "capering kids," and to prove it let me cite one circumstance. It is an old, old story, and a long one too, but here it goes anyway.

When the Masters saw how manly we were and how broad our shoulders were growing, they began to look upon us with an evil eye. They feared we were too light-hearted and happy for our age ; and what, to a Master, is more soul-destroying than the light-heartedness of youth? Now and then we could hear one grate his teeth and murmur beneath his breath as we passed by. Something was up. We knew not what. The extent of our intelligence was that we were in disfavor. O, they can't let well enough alone! Ye future generations take a fool's advice—a fool, because of the trials and tribulations that have been his—never do your work too well. If you must needs do your work well, then, with despair depicted in every feature, maintain a continuous grumble while you're at it. Keep that deadly smile far from your countenance, lest greater loads be piled upon you.

Well, we jogged along for a week or more, when someone observed that the assignment in Latin was slowly increasing. Another week and a tottering lad cried out against the Greek. Slowly but with steady tread lessons in every subject grew in size. The English ! That note-book was a monster to behold ! In a month the cords had been drawn so tight that we could stand oppression no longer. We rose in our might and made that memorable kick. Our brave men urged us on with that eloquence that never loses strength till it hides itself in some far-off home behind the clouds. It was convincing. Without a wavering man we decided to face that genius, the Faculty, in its very lair and to assert our rights and claim the life which they had promised to protect, not to destroy, when we committed our delicate beings to their care. A committee of men, hardened to all that's rough, who, from constant experience of the wrath of the man who rules with an iron hand, had become thoroughly impervious to his attacks, was sent to challenge the aforesaid genius to open combat—of words. The challenge was accepted, but, as we suppose, fearing too close quarters, and being unwilling to desecrate their wonted sanctuary—where often they had knifed us, and in our ignorance we could not say a word—by an opposing voice, they led us to the chapel. They arranged themselves in the central block of seats while we took our station on the left. A few explanatory remarks by the judge and the conflict began. Our grievances once stated they were upon us with all their mighty and irresistible force. We saw if we tried to oppose them, as a whole, we were lost. Our only hope was in some way to create discord among the powers themselves, and the apple was not far distant. At the suggestion of a bright mind, as quick as a flash, was passed along, "Don't buck them as a whole, but each fellow pick his man." We were about four or five to one, and the Latin caught it first. Each head of a subject was willing for his pet to be included for its blame in the sum total, but for that darling to be singled out and made a target for special grievance was too much. It made him "wrothy." Then, too, when special complaint was made against a single subject—for example call it "A"—all the other subjects, B, C, D, etc.—hugged themselves and said: "Of course! We knew we were not to blame. It is plainly that 'single subject' that is causing all the trouble." Then came the distressing cries from the victims of the subject "B." "B" sympathized with "A," and together they began a crusade against all the rest. But in the meantime, complaints were coming in against the other subjects, and then each set about to prove himself innocent and another guilty. The apple had been truly cast and mightily they strove. We had nought to do but sit by and watch the battle—element clashing against element, but nothing ever yielding.

Our faces were like adamant, but many a poke or nudge was exchanged in that awful hour. At last John rang the gong and the strife was ended. We were sent empty-handed away. In point of lessening our work we had accomplished nothing but a change of schedule, which, if anything, made things harder. But we had raised our voices against it like men and had had the exclusive pleasure of causing and witnessing one of the grandest "scraps" that, in all likelihood, ever had occurred in Lawrenceville, or ever will occur again, at least in sight of the hungry eyes of "underformers."

The medicine of a complete defeat in football having been administered to all the other classes in School, and especially to '92, we rapidly advanced to the Christmas holidays, of which it is unnecessary to speak any further than to state that a sojourn of three weeks in New York at this particular time of year is not always conducive to the best result—per exemplum our LONG-loved friend. Next the debate, in which we succeeded in landing two prizes. The minstrels next! How they squatted on "dear John" who had already begun to develop his peculiar propensities for society. This is the dull season of the year, and barring the contest in gymnastics, in which, by the way, '93 took the prize on both horizontal and parallel bars, nothing noteworthy happened till the heat of the Jersey sun, transferred out of which to the realms of Orcus one would freeze, drove us to drink—at DeWitt's—and to the canal. And just here don't let us forget "Venus" and "Pollio" of canal-boat fame—those two who lived but for each other and were the pride of the gang. And now Commencement! with '93 again in the lead. Where would have been the Prom. without us? How many representatives of '92 were there? But we can't wonder! Any class that could support a combination like the Big Four could not be expected to send a large delegation to a dance. That evening—his first—"Buck" was out in his sweetest smile and a Tuxedo doing his social part in perfect form.

So time went on and was fast bringing us to our goal. '92 had given us the mantle without a smirch upon it, and the summer having glided away without an interruption, we were again upon the scene, but now, Fourth Formers! Ah! who can fully and fitly describe what our respected Chapel Desk would call the "unutterable grandeur" of the Fourth Form? To begin with there was the "House of Lords," a brand new dormitory built for us and for us alone. Of course, later in the year there were a few Third Formers with us, but that was only natural (For particulars, see "Chappie" and "Nash"). Then there was Bittle Wells, imported from the Pacific slope for the decennial year at great expense; and last, but not least, there was Mrs. Vanastorbilt. Could any class have more! The beginning of the year was very eventful, and a few particulars might call up an interesting memory here and there.

First and "winning in a walk" was the official announcement of the COMING "Lit," to a large and appreciative audience gathered in Room 12. Then on the 17th, two days after our return, the classical side had a "cut" in Greek, which they took with such glee, that Mr. Hull's temperature fell forty degrees, and on top of all that Pach came over and we had our picture "took" standing on the Esplanade.

It was also about this time that another important event in the School year took place. The shining lights of the class were declared to be Post and Jessup, to the exquisite torture of "Brothers" Pierson and Robinson. Some time early in the next month (October) there arose strange rumors that two Upper House boys were proven to have been in Trenton during the "wee sma' hours;" but as no one was "removed from the School" it has been supposed that the story is untrue. Then came political agitations. Republican and Democratic clubs were organized, having, of course, their leaders in '93, and there were rumors abroad that a certain youth with tawny hair and slight inclination to boldness became desperately sick over the result of the election. No "clue," however, has been found to substantiate this theory. But the Fourth Form had a club all to itself—the Prohibition Club—for Beecher's special benefit. It was feared that the fast life Beecher was leading would wear away his constitution and possibly affect his articulating powers. Hence the club—the offspring of the philanthrophic spirit of the house. And now came the first of those blows which have struck woe and terror into our souls. Hooven left. And when, sometime afterward, the gentleman (a particular friend and chum of Pointer Morouse's) from the mining districts of Pennsylvania went back to his "hunks and hikes" we (and Pointer too) were indeed left mournful and deserted. O, there were many such doings, some forgotten and some too long to tell. We wont mention "Scobey's" song and attendant "leg pull"; with feeling for them we pass over the social successes; let us not dwell on "Squire Abbington" who will "pull a dip," wholly and solely on account of a striking resemblance between him and one of "the rulers." But now, in all seriousness, let us say a word in parting.

'93 is the largest class ever graduated from the School. In her studies she has gotten over more ground than any other class. In Latin, over and above the regular work, Sallust's Cateline has been read; in Greek, the Hellenica and extra parts of Herodotus; and at this writing it is the intention to read parts from Thucidides. In '93 she won all three prizes in debate, instituted the mid-winter promenade, and sent before the School orators of whom any class might be proud. Her athletic record has never been equalled by any other class. But by far the most important part of her history this year has been her actual life in the Upper House. Free and unrestrained by a Master's vigilance, after having lived under their ever-watchful care so long, she may have been somewhat indiscreet at first; but once awakened to her high responsibilities, once having had brought home to her the need of self-watchfulness since there was no one else to watch her, who ever bounded more quickly to the cause of right? And as for our last half year of life we eagerly challenge comparison with any other house on the grounds. We have no fear of suffering by the match.

THE MILLS OF THE GODS
GRIND SLOWLY, YET

History of '94.

NELSON BRADLEY, President.

ROBERT MCKELVY, Vice-President.

————, Secretary and Treasurer.

I HAVE before me the task of writing a history of '94. A task, I say, for I consider the relation of the glorious deeds of the heroes of '94, and of the attainments of this class, so far beyond my powers that I must needs call it so. What muse or friendly divinity could ——, but I am anticipating. Let us begin at the beginning. '94 started her career where everything must, of necessity, start, at the bottom. '94 started in the shell. Ah, those were happy days. Little did we dream then of future trials and tribulations, of "prelims." or other impassable difficulties.

The class was small, but what memories of whole weeks of "cuts" and endless hours of enjoyment in the pond and on the ball field, linger in our minds, and are told of to eager listeners, by those who were with '94 "before the war."

Our entrance into the First Form was marked by the arrival of Wheatley and Whitehead. The former's many accomplishments have been recorded in a previous history, but Whitehead, what a noble youth! how little fitted to be confined and burdened by the rules of unreasonable schoolmasters! what an enviable life he led while here! Wasn't he told in chapel that all rules of the School were void in his case and that he was at liberty to go and come when and where he pleased. '94 can claim in Whitehead, and I think without danger of being contradicted, the only special student in the history of the School.

With our entrance into the Second Form, for what reason I cannot imagine, for I am sure we deserved a better fate, our lives were made miserable by the arrival of Edward Eldred Iungerich. Since he came, fresh troubles and grievances have been added to our already overflowing cup. No lessons are too hard for him. He is never satisfied, always asking for more. He actually thinks in Latin and German, but it is said, though I won't vouch for the truth of it, that he flunked dead once on a proposition in Geometry; this can be believed or not, but I can say with perfect confidence, that he spends whole nights in studying the dictionary to find long words for use in his compositions. I would also tell of Bowne's mustache, but that is a thing of the past, de mortuis nil nisi bonum.

Our life in the Third Form has been but a short one, but we have, even in this short time, done our share to uphold the dignity of our School, for we furnished the captain and six members of the football team, which overcame our doughty rival Pennington. But we should not so briefly dispose of "Nell" Bradley. He was not born great, that was merely an accident of birth, but he has had greatness thrust upon him; for he is brother to our school president. He has also achieved greatness. The result is that envious rumor says that he is a trifle vain—that he has been heard to say, "Even I have sinned,"—but his right to vanity must be considered; those arms, those legs, that brain.

The fact that the School is this year the proud possessor of a flag pole must not be overlooked, but particular attention should not be called to this but to the small white flag which waves triumphantly from its top, bearing on it in black letters the simple but all sufficient motto, "'94." The night was dark and stormy, but the fiery elements of earth and heaven combined could not deter this illustrious son of '94 from climbing the pole and placing at its top this emblem of power and fame, which from its lofty position, looks down upon all deeds done in and around the School, and ever reminds the observer of the class of '94.

We have received this year our share of "Freshmen," but I shall refrain from speaking about them through courtesy of their age.

As Third Formers we have acquitted ourselves well in the classroom, besides making an enviable record on the ball field. I speak proudly now, but pride goeth before a fall, for we are all looking forward to our "prelims." with sad and dismal forebodings, but this goes without saying. What school boy does not dread examinations? A noticeable fact about our class as a whole, is, that although we have the usual number and kind of complaints and petitions to submit to the "powers that be," we have so far steadfastly declined to accept even once, what we took the trouble to complain of, or ask for. We are fast developing into that state which characterizes those who are soon to be steady and sedate Fourth Formers looked up to as examples by under classmen.

With the wish that '94 may, in the future, not fall below the standard she has strictly adhered to in the past, and that this incomplete history may give to the reader some idea, however faint, of the greatness of our class, I leave the fair name of '94 to rest in the hands of the future historian.

History of '95

BARRET GIBSON, President.

————————, Vice-President.

————————, Sec'y and Treas.

SHORTLY after the semi-annual examinations of the winter of 1891, the organization of this class took place under the auspices of the faculty. The class, though small at first, yet had in it those seeds of greatness which have since born fruit; for in this great but small body, freaks were not an unknown quantity, inasmuch as we possessed the world renowned "Pardner" Wells and his fast friend, "Nate" Graham.

Of course nothing happened that first year. Before we realized the fact the summer vacation was over, and we were once more in Jersey; not as the despised shell, but as the class of '95. Of course, it is hardly necessary to say, we were the largest First Form that ever entered Lawrenceville.

During this exceedingly eventful year the fame of our mental and athletic capacities spread far and wide. Some of our members distinguished themselves by holding prominent positions on the football and baseball teams, while others aired themselves on the Dramatic and Banjo Clubs. Immediately after Christmas vacation, our class was blessed by the noteworthy arrival of a Williamsport gentleman, Bottger by name, who brought with him the first full grown mustache in the class ; but even this was so " scorched " on the first night of the Minstrels, that by the time of the succeeding performance it was " out of sight."

Taking everyone of our class into consideration, probably the two most conspicuous characters were " Barber " Jones and a brawny youth named Dibble. The former won fame throughout the school by accomplishing the novel feat of cutting his own hair with great difficulty and a pair of shears; the latter's claim to distinction rests upon his own statement that his exact weight was 125 pounds, warranted all muscle.

However it would be unjust to omit from a list of our bric-a-brac such names as those of " Reddy " Irvin and " Count " Frederick Augustus Muhlenberg Schieffelin ; but of them the less said the better, for their reputations are already made.

At the gymnasium exhibition our president, Francis Huntington, carried off the honors for the class by taking first prize in the Indian Club contest.

Shortly after the Easter vacation " Cap " Kafer was elected captain of the class nine; and after the development of some first-class material (?) a team was placed on the field to meet our formidable foe, the faculty. About the middle of June the first game was played, and we were the victors. But in the second and third matches we were outplayed by our opponents.

School broke up on the 29th of June, and the ever promising class of '95 enjoyed the long-looked-for vacation. The 15th of September came only too soon and our class once more assembled in Memorial Hall. Most of us were fully aware that the Second Form was no "snap" and buckled down to work immediately; but some ——

Soon after our arrival, Gibson was elected president of our class ; maroon and white were selected for '95's colors, and a committee was appointed to procure a class pin.

The history of our class would surely be incomplete if no recognition were given to the individual peculiarities of some of our members, such as "Sleepy" Meredith, whose motto is "Slow but sure ;" also "Freaky" Wright, who is not at all bashful in letting his voice be heard. The "Siamese twins," Cox and Davis, must not escape attention ; for they are a devoted pair, and like q and u, one always follows the other.

FIRESTONE AND COMPANY.

CHARLES EDWARD FIRESTONE, President. ————, Vice-President.

———— ————, Secretary and Treasurer.

IT is a hard lot to be a First Former. It is like the start in anything. We are unknown and no one cares to know us. It is true that in the latter part of the year, the Societies take note of our existence by putting us, as it were, in one large sieve, shaking all that is worthless of us through and saving the rest for their own greedy purposes. But this never aids even those who are too "big-headed," to be sifted as long as they are First Formers, they must wait till the next year to realize their profit.

We have no chance to do anything so how can we make history. In fact, we are like Freshmen everywhere: the less history we make probably the better it is for us.

If only we could write of the things we are going to do, then you'd see something. We have no lack there. For instance, when we publish our Class Book there will be no such "truck" as this—or even the histories of the rest of the under-Forms—in it. Fourth Formers we'll be then and no deeds but ours shall grace its pages. So, then, dear friends, we refer you to that embryotic publication for the rest of this sketch————Smith is pitching the game today and we can't miss it.

Rules of School Authorities Regarding Athletics

I. One-half of the time allotted for play and recreation shall be spent under the direction of a Master, whose duty it is to see that all boys, not physically incapacitated, shall take a fair share in the sports of their fellows.

II. No challenge shall be sent or accepted by any of the School Athletic Associations until it has been approved by the Master in charge of Athletics and countersigned by the Head-Master.

III. The following By-laws, adopted by the School, February 14, 1885, shall be amended only by a two-thirds vote of the three highest forms, taken after consultation with the Master in charge of Athletics, and such amendment shall not become binding until approved by the Head-Master.

By-laws Adopted by the School February 14th, 1885

Athletic Association

OFFICERS.

1. The officers of the Athletic Association shall consist of a President chosen from and by the Fourth Form, a Treasurer chosen from the Third Form by the three highest Forms, and a Secretary chosen from the Second Form by the three highest Forms.

The election of all the officers shall take place within the first two weeks of the first term of the School year.

The three officers shall constitute a Board of Directors.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

2. The Board of Directors shall arrange, at their discretion, Fall and Winter Sports, and shall provide for a School Athletic Meeting to be held during commencement season. They shall represent this School in any Athletic Association to which it may belong, and take all measures necessary to secure a creditable representation of the School in the field-sports of such association.

Football

OFFICERS.

1. The officers of the Football Association shall consist of a Captain, Secretary-Treasurer, and three Directors. The Captain may be a member of any Form, the Secretary-Treasurer shall be a member of the Fourth Form, and the Directors shall be chosen from the Fourth, Third and Second Forms respectively.

MODE OF ELECTION.

2. The Captain shall be elected at the close of the football season, to hold the office for one year. His election shall take place at a meeting duly called by the retiring Captain some time during the last three weeks of the first term of the School year. All who have played in match games shall be entitled to a vote. This includes substitutes who have been called on the field to play in match games.

The Secretary-Treasurer shall be elected while he is a member of the Third Form, some time during the last three weeks of second term. He shall be elected by his own Form.

The Directors shall be elected by the whole School, within two weeks of the opening of the term in September.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

3. It shall be the duty of the Captain to choose sides for each day's practice, and to arrange and train the players. He shall have sole command on the field of play.

The Secretary-Treasurer shall assume all the duties ordinarily devolving upon such an officer, and shall collect and disburse moneys only as ordered by the Board of Directors. He shall have charge of all the property of the Association, including all uniforms furnished by the School, and he shall transfer the same to his successor. He shall submit his report to be audited by the Board of Directors, and shall print it in full in the Lawrence some time during the second term.

The Captain, Secretary-Treasurer and the three Directors shall constitute a Board of Directors, whose duty it shall be to issue and act upon all challenges, to make all appropriations of money for football purposes, and to choose the team and substitutes for each match game. They shall see that the team has a distinctive uniform.

SECOND TEAM.

4. If at any time it be deemed advisable to organize a Second Team to play match games, the Board of Directors shall choose such a team, and shall appoint a Captain.

Loin du Ball

The room is bright, with yellow light,
The music is playing low;
The dancers gay, speed on their way,
The Prom 's tonight, you know.

The maidens fair, in numbers there,
Add color to the dance ;
While in the hall—" far from the ball "—
Some sinners " cut " perchance.

Old Winkler plays his prettiest lays ;
And oft with greater zest
He leads his men. You hear him then Play louder by request.

For Ninety-Three tonight you see
In gala dress ; and gay
Is Lawrenceville. They dance until
The dawn comes cold and gray.

Then in our dreams, the dancing seems
Still going gayly on.
How came success? Why, can't you guess?
'Twas run by " Lugs " Masson.

"Clapper Must Come Down Tonight"

Hours ago had Jersey's sunset cast its brilliance far and near,
Hours ago had died the sunlight, now 'twas raining, cold and drear.
And the rain-drops falling, falling, fell on us with ghoulish glee,
As they daily had been falling in the spring of '93.
Most of all it soaked three fellows, left them in a sorry plight,
As they crossed the campus, murmuring, "Clapper must come down tonight."

Crossed they slowly o'er the campus, came they to the Gym. so old,
With its walls so squat and ugly, leaking sides, dark,
damp and cold.
Then spake one with whispered valor, "Time is short,
but we are spry,
Soundly sleep both Hull and Wilcox, Trap is dead, no help is nigh.
Old Doc. will not wake till sunrise," and his lips grew strangely white,
As he said in husky whisper, "Clapper must come down tonight."

"Well, you know," another answered, "Bribery cannot win the prize.
When I tempted Doc. with silver, he responded with surprise,
'Long, long years I've pulled that clapper from the old gymnasium tower;
Every Wednesday, every Saturday, it has rung for study hour.
I have done my duty ever, tried to do it "out of sight";
Now I'm old, I shall not miss it, Clapper shan't come down tonight.'"

No more time remains for parley, now the time has come to act.
"Softly, slowly raise the ladder, if we're caught we'll all get 'sacked.'"
Not a moment pause the heroes but in silent dread of Bow,
Aiming for the fragile tower where the bell swung to and fro,
Climb they up the paint shop ladder, on which fell no ray of light
Upward still their pale lips saying, "Clapper must come down tonight."

They have reached the roaring gutter just below the oft rung bell, Awful is the gloom beneath them, like the pathway down to—Study Hour.
"Hist! a groaning and a moaning that we did not hear before."
"Fools and cowards, that is nothing but a master's midnight snore—
We must do it now or never, 'tis too late a time for flight."
All the three repeat in chorus, "Clapper must come down tonight."

Cover they the roof's one opening (aptly called an old Trap-door),
Years exposed to storms it never had such tender care before.
Crowbar gets its deadly work in. Skill and science do their part,
Tongue from bell is separated, after years they now must part.
Down the ladder go the robbers, then they quickly take their flight,
Smiling faces tell their triumph: "Clapper did come down tonight."

Old Doc., tolling in the morning, can't find out "where he is at";
For the bell is strangely silent, so he goes across for Pat.
All the Faculty assemble and Detective Crouse is called,
Clews by dozens all prove fruitless, thieves are never overhauled,
And the Clapper's ne'er recovered. Underforms with wild delight
Will relate to future classes, How the Clapper fell that night.

History of Our Own Times.

APRIL.

ALL Fool's Day as usual ushered in this month. But unfortunately, owing to some conflict in the schedule, we did not get a holiday. Our spirits wounded by this omission, were soothed on the 6th by a baseball victory over Princeton Seminary. Score, 15—2. On the following Monday, the 11th, '93 elected her Ollapod board and a football manager for the fall term. The next day, the third annual gymnastic exhibition resulted in the award of the following prizes: Horizontal bar, R. M. Shepard, '94; parallel bars, Dana, '93; indian clubs, Huntington, '95.

The 13th brought with it the spring vacation, when for one short week we escaped the sound of the old bell, and did our best to rid ourselves of any knowledge we might have picked up at odd intervals during the term. But, to counteract our joy, there happened at the same time an event which shook our school to its J. Sea-green foundation. "Billy" Thompson left us of his own free will.

The Woodhull went into deep mourning on "Billy's" departure, till Easter A. M., it decided it could no longer stand the Payne of separation; so in one grand protest against the vicissitudes of this life, committed suicide by fire.

On their return, the Woodhullites were quartered in the Gym., and the former inhabitants of the Rouse House found their domiciles once more open for occupation. During the next few days the mercury, in sympathy with our spirits, fell forty degrees; but it and we soon regained our normal condition; for, a few days later, one of our old favorites, Prof. Churchill, gave his "Miscellaneous Readings" before the assembled school. On the same day the athletic and lacrosse teams began practice.

On the 27th, Fitzgerald and Flint asserted their superiority over the rest of the school by winning the Whist tournament; and a victory of our Nine over the Princeton Preps., on the 30th, fitly ended the month. Score, 18—1.

MAY.

This month with its sunshine and warm weather waked our athletic organizations from their long winter's rest. Among other events of importance, the first Form baseball team began practice under Captain Kafer. On the 4th our lacrosse team was defeated by Stevens Institute in a very exciting game. Score, 1—0. But this disaster was speedily atoned for by our baseball victory over the Princeton Tigers. Score, 6—2.

The next day "G. P. Butler, Jr." arrived at the Cleve House. Members of that household, who are authority, say that he practices our school cheers day and night and promises to be a second "Jay" Gould.

The fifth—

Alas! Alas! that fifth of May;
Oh, what a sad and gruesome day,
When Perry on his homeward way
Went tripping.

The circus at Trenton and the Yale Glee Club at Princeton sufficed to take our minds off their tasks the following day.

The 8th was our Waterloo. Three cases of diphtheria and a visit from Kemp broke upon us like lightning from a clear sky; rarely have we suffered so from the anger of Providence, and we earnestly pray that no such disaster may fall to our lot again. A day later Messrs. Walbridge & Co. moved their stock of goods to Miss Van Zandt's, where many of their old friends came to congratulate them.

The lacrosse team disbanded after having in vain struggled for existence all spring. But on the 12th our baseball team showed renewed life, gaining an easy victory over the Brooklyn Polytechnic School.

Friday following (ill-omened day) a third Former recited before the school an extract from J. Caesar, beginning:

"O, what a fall was then, my countrymen,
Then I, and you, and all of us fell down."

The faculty immediately acted on the hint; need we say more? But "Tis an ill wind, etc.," and Mr. Hull was so busy sifting his classes that he was unable to attend to his regular duties. The Third Form got two cuts from him that Friday and Saturday, and another old tradition was disproved.

On the 18th, by unusually skillful playing, we won a closely contested baseball game from Pennington, and a few days after were somewhat chagrined to see in one of their papers the old, old story: "Owing to the unjust decisions of the umpire," etc. But it is hard to be a gentleman always and especially so after defeat. Ten days later, we again defeated Pennington by a score of 6—3. In the evening of the same day Philo. Society held a banquet in Trenton.

L. Perry and S. A. Thompson, both '94, won the tennis tournament on the 20th; while Howells, '92, and Mitchell, '93, carried off second prize. On the 30th our athletic team returned from New York covered with glory, having won at the contest twenty-six points, scoring eight more than any other school.

JUNE.

On the 1st our Nine suffered defeat at the hands of the Princeton 'Varsity. Score, 12—1.

Two days later, however, we defeated the Freshmen. Score, 4—1 .Rain prevented a bonfire and the masters escaped the delights (?) of speech making. During the day A. T. Kemp's gift of several sets of much needed books to the library was thrown open for inspection. And on "Buck's" appearance at the Gym., at nine P. M., the Prom. began. Harvey sauntered in during the evening with a pair of long trousers on, but with such a cool and collected air that none but his friends knew that this was his first appearance in the manly garb.

On the 4th the second team was defeated by a scrub from Princeton. Bonfire postponed on account of darkness.

The next day, Sunday, Commencement commenced. Dr. Mackenzie delivered the Baccalaureate sermon at the afternoon service, after which John G. Hibben addressed the Christian Association.

During the afternoon of the following day the field sports were held, and the day closed with the Declamation Contest. Johnhenrythompsonjunior, '93, W. B. Johnston, '93, and C. R. Hudson, '94, captured the prizes in order named.

Class Day exercises were held on the 7th. '92 Ollapod appeared in morning; '92 Ollapod board appeared in mourning. Hon. G. M. Robeson delivered the Founder's Day Address against time; then Diplomas were judiciously distributed.

The remainder of the month was uneventful, the thought of the long vacation being uppermost in our minds. College exams. were held as usual and Lawrenceville enjoyed a much needed rest.

SEPTEMBER.

On the 15th, after a long and tedious journey from the Pacific slope, Bittle Wells alighted at Lawrenceville. Having learned the date of his arrival, Dr. Mackenzie had arranged with great tact to have school open the same day. Moreover, the faculty had been enlarged by the addition of a proof-reader, Mr. Johnson by name, in order that the western journalist might not be overworked; and the literary societies, falling into the line of worship, commenced work shortly after his arrival. On Tuesday, the 20th, he held a soirée musicale for uninvited guests only. (A repetition of the same offense is punishable by death.) And on the same day, Play (?) commenced.

Football practice was soon begun, to the amazement of the other freshmen, who, by the way, to the number of one hundred and twenty-five, had flooded the school with their presence and tears.

Saturday, the 17th, Dr. Mackenzie announced the election of Jerome Bradley as President of the Fourth Form, Upper House, and School; and two days later a revolution in the admonitory system dethroned Mr. Hull.

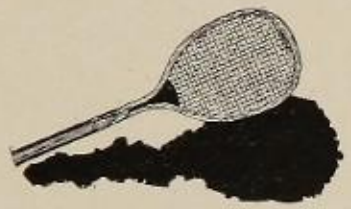
Many of the Princeton freshmen found in us an escape from the sophomores during the following week and were recuperated by a quiet Sunday in Lawrenceville.

Thursday, the 22d, the various musical clubs organized and adopted a systematic plan for the torture of the school. It rained. At a meeting, the next day, the school elected Van Nest, '93; Shepard, '94; and Barnes, '95; football directors, and later in the day the Dramatic Club organized.

On the 24th, the first Lawrence appeared to the horror of the freshmen, but its support elected its representatives, McKelvy, '94, and Farr, '95, to the positions of Treasurer and Secretary of Athletics, respectively.

The rest of the month occupied itself and us with the Inter-State Fair at Trenton, where we met with our usual success, McFarlan bringing back "Second Prize Swine." At the bench show of this exhibition, however, having failed to capture the blue ribbon, Trap died of mortification. At the request of the Doctor, no flowers were sent.

OCTOBER.



In our fall tennis tournaments, the 1st of this month, J. H. Smith, '93, took first prize; Jessup, '93, second. In doubles J. H. Smith, '93, and S. G. Thomson, '94, first; Masson and Sears, both '93, second.

Our football team in its first game, on the 5th, suffered defeat at the hands of a Princeton scrub. Score, 8—0.

October 8th developed great enthusiasm over the campaign. Republican and Democratic meetings were called, and the response of One Democrat secured victory for his party. One week later our first football victory of the season was secured through the defeat of the Princeton Consolidated team. Score, 18—0. We celebrated by forming campaign clubs. Torchlight processions, stones, bricks, clubs, etc., followed. At a rousing Prohibition meeting, the next day, Beecher was chosen party candidate for Pres.

On the following Monday, Lawrenceville's second team defeated Trenton Model School; 16—0.

On the morning of the 20th, the Democrat "procs." were posted in conspicuous places and our Columbus Day exercises were held the next day. Among the other amusements, the "House of Lords" defeated the united school in a base-ball game. Score, 5—4. Mr. Swift, about this time, delivered his celebrated Republican speech which defeated Harrison and killed his party; while later, in the village, the Republicans tried to regain their lost ground by holding a mass meeting before which J. J. Gardner and others delivered addresses.

On the 28th Furman's store was robbed and our prize detectives have been unable to get any clue to the thief.

Saturday, the 29th, we defeated Haverford in football by a score of 8—10; and the next day, the month was closed and our lecture course opened by the appearance of Leland T. Powers in "Conn, the Shaughran."

NOVEMBER.

Almost every member of the school witnessed the Princeton-Chicago game on the 2d. D. Howard C. was in his glory and gave some very good points to the Chicago boys, whose defeat he bemoaned later at the Iota Gamma dinner.

Mr. Patterson moved to the Cleve next day.

The flag pole (?) at last arrived and was carried to its final resting place by many public spirited students. (The services for the occasion had been held the preceding week and it was not thought necessary to repeat them.)

A goodly portion of Lawrenceville could have been seen at Manheim on the afternoon of the 5th.

Election Day renewed our enthusiasm. Democrats were very confident, but in poor standing with the bursar. To add to the excitement the banjo club was chosen with Stover as leader and the din became horrible. On the morning of the 9th, we were wakened from our slumbers by "Snatcher Magoun's" rejoicing over his winnings on the election, and we realized that "there is some bitterness in every cup."

We were in our normal condition, however, on the 12th, and defeated Pennington's football eleven. Score, 4—0. The New York Military Academy, four days later, met a similar fate. Score, 22—6. And on the 19th we played a tie game with the Princeton freshmen. Score, 6—6. The Hamill House

Minstrels and the Caterwaul Banquet were the festivities of the evening and the Upper House warming on Monday, the 21st, was a source of enjoyment to the favored few.

Thanksgiving vacation began on the 23d. Fifty hours later, however, we again mounted our steeds and continued the march onward.

DECEMBER.

Bleak and cold December proved a hard test on those of us who do not possess a cast iron constitution ; many of us quavered and McNair, '97, had to give up completely and seek a more temperate climate.

The Art club was formed on the 7th, with Mr. Kinsley as President. The entertainment given by the Lotus Glee Club in the evening of the same day proved one of the most enjoyable events in our lecture course.

In chapel, on the 8th, Mr. Anthony Comstock delivered an address on the same subject.

Philo. Society went to Trenton for their annual dinner on the 10th.

On Tuesday, the 13th, a gun club was formed, and its trial shoot took place the next day, Hinsdale, '93, and Lewis, '94, winning.

A Mr. Roberts delivered a lecture on "Paris Life and Beauty."

On the 19th, the orchestra and banjo club, under the direction of Mr. Trench, entertained the school. At a Fourth Form meeting held the same day the mid-winter prom. committee was elected, and "Lugs" was elated. C. Derr was chosen football captain for '93.

The following Wednesday our three weeks' vacation began ; and we all went home to hang up our socks. Rumor has it that a number of other things were hung up in the course of this vacation.

JANUARY.

The 12th of January found us all back in Lawrenceville and on the 13th we were hard at work, trying to strengthen ourselves for the bitter trial which was coming ; for on the 17th, Mr. Sayford began a visit of a week to the school.

The 20th we enjoyed our usual sleighing holiday (?). A number of enterprising Fourth Formers, under the direction of Detective Butcher Crouse, made a "slide" on the Upper House Esplanade. Here and there a Lord, however, refused to be enticed into such a trivial amusement and still preferred a skate.

On the 21st, C. H. Caton delivered a lecture on "Mrs. Grundy." The speaker succeeded in getting entire possession of his audience and in a short time carried us away with him to dream-land.

The Camera Club organized with Masson, '93, as President.

At a school meeting the following directors were elected: J. H. Smith, '93, Harris, '93, and Kafer, '95, baseball; Churchman,* '93, R. Derr, '94, and Keyes, '95, lacrosse.

FEBRUARY.

The newly formed art club held its first monthly exhibition, which proved a decided success. Again the Dramatic Club reorganized.

The Ladies' Crescent Club favored us with a few rare old selections said to have been found among the ruins of Pompeii.

The New York Philharmonic Club gave a concert on the 15th of a more modern character, showing that the 19th century has made as great an improvement in music as in other arts. The Fourth Form pictures were taken on the same day.

The anniversary of Washington's birthday was fittingly celebrated by the annual contest in debate, the prizes for which were awarded to W. H. Smith, Philo.; W. S. Harris, Calli.; and Wilson Morris, Philo.; in order named; and also by the mid-winter prom., during which Mr. Winkler played "a little faster" by request.

This month was devoted largely to the formation of clubs, sectional and otherwise, and the taking of school pictures.

February thoroughly aroused by the forgoing events proceeded to MARCH.

The second monthly exhibition of the Art Club was held on the 1st.

Three days later the Fourth Form held their class day elections.

On the 7th, the Remenyi Concert Company arrived at Lawrenceville from Trenton after a stormy passage of three days. On the same day a revolt against the authority of the House of Lords was quelled by prompt action and snow balls.

The baseball team practiced out of doors for the first time on the 10th.

The following Friday, Mr. Beck delivered a lecture on Columbus, to the delight of the chapel seats.

The orchestra continued the persecution by a concert on the 13th. "Scovy" informed us that he was "out on the deep" but did not say how much.

The Gun Club held their final shoot on the 27th, and chose its team.

On the 28th, the Lawrence trial board elections took place.

The Calliopean Society held its annual banquet on the following day, and two days later March goes out like a lamb.

What's going to go this Season?

The Black Diagonal Cutaway Suit is. Of course, young men can't be tied down to any one thing. You'll wear the Sack Coat and the Cutaway; you'll wear Pin Stripes and Pin Checks; you'll hunt out the choicest styles and goods and shapes, and that's what you'll wear.

This Black Diagonal Cutaway will be head of the list, or almost head. One quite proper reliable quality is $12; from that up the prices go, and the qualities.

If you were in the business, you'd take the $12 suit for a $15 one.

The Silk-lined Overcoat is $20 to $25. Stylish shapes and colors, from $10 up.
